Asset Generation / Construction / Parking: What to Do When They Collide?

(As you read through this piece, you can easily change the word "university" to "hospital" or "city." The issues dealing with "taking" surface parking for new construction transcend the organization type. Editor)

On many, if not most, college or university campuses, several forces are impacting the parking systems these days. We will examine two of these issues during our session next month at the Parking Industry Exhibition (PIE) 2014.

If you are a parking administrator at any level or in any capacity, this session will provide a clear example of how to address the issue of parking as an asset and how to cope with loss of facilities. Click here to read more.

UPCOMING EVENTS:

Parking in major metropolitan cities is no walk in the park.

US cities generate billions of dollars in parking-related fines every year. While all cities have different policies and vendors to handle parking ticket issuance and collections, we at TicketZen set out to understand how some of the country's biggest cities stack up in terms of parking ticket revenue generation.

We reviewed the parking ticket revenue and population of New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco, Boston and Washington, DC. Click here to read more.

Technology and People Combine To Make a Successful Company

It had been almost two decades since I last visited Southland Printing Co. Its Co-Founder, John A. Manno Sr., was at the helm and became PT's first customer. His company has never missed an issue since. When PT Advertising Director Marcy Sparrow and I arrived in Shreveport, LA, I hardly knew what to expect.

It's said that the more things change, the more they stay the same. John A. Manno Jr. has been handed the reins and is now President of Southland Printing. Click here to read more.
